THE LEGAL PROFESSION

Contrary to the opinion of many laymen, the legal profession is not made up of a group of courtroom parasites and crooks.

The truth is that the majority of lawyers are scrupulously honest; in many instances, much more so than their clients would have them be. They handle the bulk of their practice within their office walls, and in the role of adviser, counselor, executor, and peacemaker, they help clients avoid law suits and reach agreeable settlements.

With the increase in Federal legislation, there has been a proportionate increase in business for lawyers. The many newly-created boards, bureaus, and agencies demand intelligent legal administration.

Despite the fact that there are approximately 170,000 lawyers in the United States, which would seem a sufficient number to handle the legal business of the nation, it is exceedingly doubtful whether there are enough capable, adequately equipped lawyers to meet present social demands.

In recent weeks the writer has been informed by reliable authority that there is at least one county in Kentucky which has only one lawyer, and several others which do not have an adequate number.

Aside from the practice of law, most people have, for a long time, overlooked the important social and cultural values to be gained from law training. Law is rich in history, economics, psychology, political and all the allied sciences. It is a means through which the social objectives of the scientist are expressed and put into operation.

In the future there will undoubtedly be an increasing number of students in law schools who do not expect to enter the practice. Business leaders, legislators, bankers, political leaders, and government executives definitely need legal training.

The United States Department of Justice agents are required to be graduates in law. For the purpose of raising our national peace officer personnel, legal training is being advocated strongly.

The years immediately ahead will find much work outside of the practice of law to be done by those trained professionally in law.—DR. JACK NEAL LOTT, JR., Dean School of Law University of Louisville.

BUILDING HABITS

Discussing the building of habits, Miss Florence Imlay of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture says that "many adults fail to realize that the most important factor in training children is their attitude and method of approach to the child." She lists the following points to keep in mind in developing good habits:

Be calm and self-controlled. Speak quietly but firmly. Be a good example.

Think before giving an order. Agree, as parents, on a plan but realize that it must be flexible.

Start training the child at birth to form habits of regularity. Adjust the habit to be developed to the age and learning ability of the child.

Avoid a scene, whenever possible, but when one is started see it thru. Be consistent and do not allow a child to do something one day for which he will be punished in another instance.

Play fair to yourself and be fair to the child.

Guide and direct a child rather than control by domineering.

Get the child's attention, be sure he understands the directions and then insist on their execution.

Provide the child with the necessary equipment to help develop a desired habit.

Be definite in directions and avoid such words as maybe, perhaps and sometime.

Speak in positive terms and avoid the use of "don't" as much as possible.

Make the formation of the desirable habit pleasant.

Have patience.

Keep on the job.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The man who works hard usually finds time to play.

Just a reminder that might save your life; drive carefully.

People who see rarely think of the handicaps of the blind.

Modern children find it rather difficult to teach their parents.

Thrilling statistics: During 1938, 134,737 Americans traveled abroad.

What good is an education to a man or woman who cannot get a job?

Under the surface, most men are boys and, sometimes, the surface is thin.

The farm problem in the United States cannot be solved by promises.

If you state a thing loudly enough and long enough, somebody will believe it.

The United States is a power whether some Americans know it or not.

One trouble with the world is that it has too many people thinking up resolutions.

The farther an individual is from any problem, the easier the solution appears.

What with pulpit, press and radio, the American people have no scarcity of advice.

Transportation is a commodity that should sell at uniform price thruout the country.

It is interesting to hear parents, who rarely read a book, criticising children for not studying.

Any country, governed by the business class, will have cheap labor and cheap raw materials.

Between the present time and the 1940 election, you can hear almost anything from Washington.

A farmer grows food and feed for himself; a planter buys both and speculates upon the price of a crop.

Undoubtedly most newspapers in the United States are honest but journalism has its black sheep.

It might be funny but, nevertheless, families who cannot buy clothes manage to purchase automobiles.

Many people criticize the newspapers and berate the editors of the country, but few of them run from publicity.

Our idea of an American patriot is not worrying over what Germany, Italy or Japan thinks of our rearmament plan.

The word from Europe is that Hitler does not want war at this time but unfortunately, Mussolini wants Tunisia.

Land-lubbers may be interested to learn that, in a few years, the United States will have a first class merchant marine.

There may be reasons why the people of West Liberty should buy what they need in other places; does anybody know what they could be?

Some Americans have forgotten the three R's in their practice of the three B's—Brag, Bluff and Bluster.

NEW THEATER BUILDING

The new theater building, which is being built on the former post-office site by Alonzo Elam is nearing completion. The building is constructed of hollow tile blocks with a brick front, and is practically fire proof.

The building is 90 feet long and 34 feet wide and will have a seating capacity of about 500. It is expected that the first show will be held in the new building March 15.

The front has the conventional theater entrance with ticket window in center and entrance and exit doors.

On each side of the entrance way is a fine little office room, entirely disconnected from the theater assembly and which open only to the street. These little rooms are suitable for a small business or office room.

SPRADLIN

George Spradlin of near West Liberty departed this life February 4, 1939, aged 84 years. He was married to Scynthia Easterling, and to this union were born three daughters: Anna, deceased; Mrs. Dorsie McGuire of Cottle; and Mrs. Josie Johnston of West Liberty. Uncle George, as he was commonly called, united with the Christian Church in early life and lived a true Christian life until death. He had been afflicted for several years but had been able to be up until two or three days before his death. Besides his daughters, he leaves his aged companion, five grandchildren, and two great grandchildren, and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held at the home on Monday, February 6, by Revs. Joe Cottle, Roy Potter, and G. W. Potter and burial in the Dave Lemaster cemetery on Lacy Creek.

ELAM

C. E. Elam was born September 15, 1875, died March 2, age 63 years, 5 months and 15 days. He was married to Allafair Bolin December 7, 1895, to this union was added five children, Lula Smith of Dingus; Stella Cooper of Lick Burg; Jackson and Wiley of Florress. He became a member of the church of Christ in early life and lived a devoted Christian life until death. He leaves to mourn his departure his companion, four children, two girls and two boys, an aged mother, two brothers and sister, four grandchildren and a host of friends and relatives. He was a kind father. All who knew him loved him. Funeral services were conducted at his home by R. H. Nickell and A. J. Williams. Prayer by J. K. Bolin. Burial was in the Dawson cemetery. A large crowd attended the funeral. Our deepest love goes to his companion and children.

Dies in Illinois

Twenty-six, Ky.—Mr. and Mrs. Marion Perry received the sad news of the death of their grandchild, Russell Vaughn, aged 5 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Perry, of Mahomet, Illinois.

VISUAL EDUCATION MOVIES

Anyone knows that it is more pleasant to see a moving picture than to study a book. Often we do not realize, however, that the things we learn by seeing them usually make a more lasting impression than the things we read about.

Unless one has had occasion to go into a library he has no conception of the wealth of knowledge that lies there in the books. Similarly, unless one has had occasion to look over the libraries of Visual Education films, now available in this country at very small cost, he has no idea what a wealth and wonderland awaits our young people, if and when we can have a well conducted visual education program in our schools and for our communities.

Without any official connection with the Board of Education, there has been organized in Morgan county a Visual Education Committee, for the purpose of making visual education possible here, by raising enough support to buy a 16 mm Motion Picture Projector, with sound-uniform equipment, for the use of the schools of this county. The chairman of this committee is Carl Reeves, Band Director in the West Liberty School, and the secretary is Dr. Wallace Ryd Director of the Morgan County Health Department.

Funds for the purchase of the movie equipment are to be raised mainly, if not entirely, by giving movies with the machine itself which is to become school property when bought. For this purpose movies with not only educational but also entertainment value have been chosen for weekly showings during this month.

The places of showing for this week are to be as follows: Ezel, Thursday afternoon, 2:30 p.m.; Cannel City, Wednesday night, at 7 o'clock; West Liberty, Thursday night, at the school auditorium, 7 o'clock.

The movie to be shown this week is taken from Gene Stratton Porter's famous story of the mountains; entitled GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST. Large crowds are expected. Admission will be 10 cents for school children; 25 cents for adults.

FARMERS' COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

The rate of seeding Italian rye grass is 5 pounds to the acre when mixed with other grasses, and not less than 10 pounds when sowed on old lespedeza and grass fields. It may be used to patch up thin stands of pasture and hay crops.

An abundance of pure drinking water is most important to the milk cow. A cow needs three to four pounds of water for every pound of milk produced. Improved water supplies are following installation of electricity on many farms.

For burley tobacco, allow at least 200 square feet of bed for each acre to be set. Many growers prefer twice this much. Only about half as much seed is required for dark tobacco, since less than half as many plants per acre are set.

In repairing furniture, small breaks in legs, arms or rungs can be mended by filling them with glue and nailing with brads. Use an awl or small gimlet to make holes for the brads, so as to prevent splitting the wood.

Experienced potato growers cut seed thick and blocky, with the pieces about the size of a pullets egg. There should be at least one eye in each piece, and more will not matter. Cutting away extra eyes is poor practice.

Some persons prefer the flavor and browned appearance of roasts seared at a high temperature, but searing is unnecessary to make a juicy, well-flavored product. Shrinkage is less when meat is cooked at a constant, low temperature.

CHICKENS PAY WELL

Poultry raising is adding $700,000 a year to the income of farmers in Grayson county, according to a summary of January production, made by County Agent Faulkner. Not only have flocks been enlarged in the past few years but attention has been given to breeding and to blood-tested and disease-free stock. As a result Grayson county eggs are in demand for hatching purposes at a premium price. The other six or seven months of the year, selected table eggs are produced, some of them being shipped to markets in the north and east. During mid-winter, hatching eggs are shipped south.

FOR BETTER CORN

Ways of growing large yields per acre, so only the best land need be devoted to corn, are discussed in a leaflet published by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Crop rotation, applications of limestone and phosphate and planting hybrid seed increased yields at experimental fields. Corn yields in Kentucky are too low, it is said in the leaflet, due to poor soil and improper growing methods. Corn causes the loss of more soil by erosion than does any other crop. Rows should be run around slopes-contour farming practiced. Cover crops should protect the land in winter. Finally, more pasture and meadow crops may decrease the need for so much corn.

FERTILIZE FOR TOBACCO

Farmers in doubt about soil management and fertilization for tobacco will find useful information in Bulletin No. 379 of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Where burley is grown on good soil and capable of producing 1,000 pounds of leaf an acre without additional fertilization, it is suggested that about 300 to 400 pounds of fertilizer analyzing 4 to 5 percent nitrogen, 8 to 12 percent phosphoric acid and 6 to 8 percent potash usually will prove profitable. On less productive soils it may pay to use 500 to 800 pounds of fertilizer an acre.

In most instances 8 to 10 tons of manure per acre, supplemented by about 200 pounds of superphosphate on low-phosphate soil, will give better quality tobacco than complete fertilizer, according to this bulletin.

For dark tobacco 200 to 300 pounds an acre of 3-8-6, or similar analysis, is recommended for use at the hills. This is considered sufficient for soils already in good condition. On poorer land, fertilizer at the hills should be supplemented with a broadcast application of 200 pounds of superphosphate and 50 to 75 pounds of muriate or sulfate of potash to the acre.

FARM BUILDING

Increased interest in farm construction is indicated by the number of requests for plans for buildings and equipment received by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Last year, the colleges department of agricultural engineering supplied 1,389 sets of plans upon requests from farmers in 107 Kentucky counties and 23 other states.

Plans for tobacco barns were most in demand, but hundreds of farmers wanted to build poultry houses, hog houses, dairy barns, general barns, storage houses and machine sheds. Reports of county agents showed that more than 6,000 buildings were constructed, remodeled or repaired on Kentucky farms last year.

In the opinion of Prof. J. B. Kelley of the College, Kentucky farmers should spend annually about $17,000,000 in putting up new buildings and in remodeling and repairing old ones. He believes that, in the name of efficiency and better living, thousands of new houses and other buildings are needed, while many more buildings should be remodeled or repaired. Reconstruction of fences also is needed on large numbers of farms.

In the matter of better equipment, Prof. Kelley notes the need of improved water facilities on large numbers of farms. Inadequate water supply has been especially serious in recent droughts. In an effort to remedy the situation, many ponds and reservoirs have been dug and wells added in the last two or three years.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Chronology

1932—RFC lends $19,000,000 to Central Republic Bank and Trust Company of Chicago.

1934—Government sues 3500 stockholders under Illinois Bank law providing double liability.

1936—Federal Court awards that amount to the RFC.

1939—Circuit Court of Appeals upholds decision of lower court.

?—Case goes to Supreme Court.

?—Government gets money.

WPA and PWA

During the first seven and a half months of the present fiscal year, the WPA spent $1,450,986,122, exceeding similar expenditures during the same period of the previous year by more than $600,000,000. The PWA, which handles a billion dollar public works program under provisions made by the last Congress, disbursed only $131,731,471. Its expenditures, however, lagged behind actual construction.

Building

The Anti-trust division of the Department of Justice is conducting a survey of building materials and labor costs. If unlawful "bottleneck" or trade restrictions are maintaining artificially high prices for building materials, it is intimated that some action will be taken.

Supreme Court

The Supreme Court seems to be getting more harmonious. With the present terms about half completed, fifty out of seventy-five opinions have been without a dissent. Although in several of these cases one or more justices did not participate. The division of the court in the twenty-five cases included: Five, 7-1; six, 6-2; three, 6-1; five, 5-3; five, 5-2; and one, 4-4. This latter was a stalemate, which left the opinion of the lower court unchanged.

Army

If Congress provides the funds, the Army will stage the most extensive field maneuvers ever held in the East during the month of August. The concentration will total about 67,000 men, exceeding anything since the days of the World War. One camp will center around Plattsburg, New York, and the other around Manassas, Virginia.

Problem

Talk about a balanced budget is useless as long as millions of unemployed continue to exist. Getting these persons to work is, in the main, a job for business. While there are definite trends toward a business-Government truce reactionary groups continue to wage rear-guard actions. This is probably what should be expected, but it is safe to predict that the Federal Government will continue to have deficits until the economic situation in this country is greatly improved. If businessmen, including bankers, capitalists and industrialists, know the answer to the problem, they might as well start solving it.

South America

A new trade program with South America, designed to dissipate the old-time impression of "imperialism" and frankly dictated to save the Americans for Americans is likely to be stimulated by Secretary Hull, who is surveying the trade situation. Because two-way trade is recognized as an economic necessity. Some attention will be given to the possibility of buying things in South America which have heretofore been purchased elsewhere. Moreover, better credit and communications facilities will be sought and, in addition, travel to South America will be encouraged.

Charging that her husband practiced fraud in inducing her to marry him last November, Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart last week end filed suit at Greenup for a divorce from J. A. Stewart. She also asks for alimony and restoration to her maiden name. —The Russell Times.

The dry forces of Pikeville made their second move in their effort to eliminate liquor from Pikeville Tuesday when a petition, asking County Judge Ester Hopkins to authorize a referendum vote on May 4 was filed with County Clerk Bessie R. Arnold. —Pike County News.

Mr. Sterling was visited by the worst fire she has experienced in nine years Tuesday afternoon when six houses in the colored section of the town known as Tenney Hill went up in flames, and several others slightly damaged. The blaze, said to have started in the home of Lottie Higgins, spread rapidly until the six buildings were all in flames at the same time. —The Sentinel-Democrat.

The grand jury, in its final report to Circuit Judge D. B. Caudill at the time it adjourned here last week, said that it had determined the state law in regard to closing places of business on the Sabbath was being "badly violated" and ordered that a notice published by the county attorney, warning all merchants and business men that the law would be enforced hereafter. —Bath County News-Outline.

At Glasgow two old age pensioners got drunk, got in jail. While in the bastille their old age pension checks arrived but were not delivered, because the Old Age Pension Supervisor held that the checks were issued for the purpose of supplying necessities, and liquor was no necessity. Dr. Lloyd, Director of the Division of Old Age Assistance said persons now drawing old age assistance stood for having their assistance reduced or stopped altogether.

As long as we can remember recall hearing that the insane asylums and penitentiaries were overcrowded. The day is coming when society will take steps necessary to reduce the populations of asylums and penal institutions. When we arrive at the point where we refuse to permit the unfit to reproduce we will have space to rent in our asylums and penal institutions also. The tragic part of it is that the means of correction are known but the determination to apply them is lacking. —The Auburn Times.

Last Saturday in County Judge Roy J. Blankenship's office showed to a certainty that the enforcement of the attendance law of children in this county would be carried out. Children not attending school without any excuse is going to finally be prohibited in the state, and Carter county is being adjusted to meet these demands as fast as possible. There is little excuse for parents or guardians not sending children to school, in fact sickness is about the only one. J. C. Jones and C. W. Barker of Brinegar offered, when arraigned before the judge, as an excuse, they did not like the teacher, but this is absolutely no legal excuse, and as a result they were fined and given their choice in paying, replevin or going to jail, which of course is the legal steps taken. —Carter County Herald.

Early Pike Peak Fire

In the early days of settlement in the country fire-fighting methods were unknown. When a fire was started by hunters on Pike's peak it is said to have burned intermittently for eight months and to have covered many thousands of acres, although there were several times during the period when a small crew of men could have extinguished it.

HIGH SCHOOL BAND GOES TO TOURNAMENT

"Everybody ready?" Mr. Reeves thrust his head inside the crowded bus (there was no room for the rest of him) . . . His eyes were bright as he looked at the splendor of red and black uniforms. Proud was the word!

This trip to the tournament had all the thrills and satisfaction experienced by great showmen on concert tours.

Lynn Nickell crowded in the farthest Southeast corner shifted his cap, took it off to closely inspect the gold tape letters "M. C. H. S." in a burst of school spirit he piped the song, "Let's Give a Rah for Morgan." No one heard him in the front so he sang it again. He was provided with some real competition when Chester Rose's baritone, or maybe 'twas bass, broke out in the melodious Loch Lomond.

At Salyersville we were not disappointed. If we didn't take the town by storm we at least added considerable color and sound to the tournament proceedings. We were royally treated. Mr. George, Salyersville Band Director, made us feel prouder than ever of our new uniforms and progress. We played with members of the Salyersville Band, got acquainted with each other between "lip rests" and felt the day well spent.

We wish to thank Cannel City and Crockett for paying our fare into the sessions Saturday.

Friday afternoon we stored our instruments at Salyersville and came home tired and anxious to return for the finals on Saturday.

Saturday night 38 tired musicians doffed their red and black, well pleased with everybody including themselves, appreciation of Salyersville hospitable and resolved to work harder than ever to have the best High School Band in the state.

Authority May Be Useless

Fertilizer Attachment Got Empty

HERE'S what happens when fertilizer is omitted from one row of corn at planting time while it is being applied to the next row. The bulletin of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. The fertilizer attachment on the planter became empty on one side. So the row on the right was unfertilized, while the row on the left received an application of 150 pounds of fertilizer. In the above photograph taken in the middle of the growing season the corn on the right was 1 1/2 feet shorter and not tasseled like the corn in the row alongside of it. And at harvest time the row on the right yielded a much smaller crop than its fertilized neighbor which had had the benefit of plant food.

FOREIGN NATIONS USE MORE FERTILIZER THAN UNITED STATES

CHICAGO—Nations of Europe use from two and a half to twenty times as much chemical plant food per acre as does the United States for fertilizing crop land and plowable pasture.

"The average for the United States is five pounds per acre," says the report based on international statistics compiled for 1936. "Holland uses 99 pounds of chemical plant food per acre, Belgium 80, and Germany 67. Then come Denmark with 40, Norway with 29, and Sweden with 22 pounds. France uses 21 pounds per acre, Italy 17 and Great Britain 12.

"The rate of consumption in this country is, however, considerably higher than it is in Poland and Hungary which use respectively three and one pounds per acre."

"Soil conservation has been a necessity in Europe for centuries because of the large populations and the relatively small acreage of tillable farm land."

"In the United States millions of acres of farm land have been ruined because of erosion or depletion by cropping. If the nation's greatest resource—the soil—is to be conserved, an ever-increasing program of soil improvement and fertilization must be followed."

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Mrs. S. R. Collier, who is making her home with Mrs. Baldwin, about two weeks ago went to her friends, the Sam Spencer family, to help them out while they were unable to wait on each other. Monday night, she went out to milk. The cow kicked at her and in trying to get away she fell and men had to be called to carry her to the house. Tuesday, Dr. Murray took her to the Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington. X-Rays showed the leg bone broken just one inch below the hip joint. They set the bone yesterday. The many friends of Mrs. Collier extend sympathy to her at this sad accident and trust she may have a speedy recovery.

Business Guides

By C. E. Johnston

Director, Business Training Schools, International Correspondence Schools

MAN who plans to open a business for himself, if he wishes to have a reasonable assurance of success, should be a student of business and possess some business experience. He should also have specific knowledge of the field he plans to enter. Many persons who do not have these qualifications attempt to compensate for their deficiencies by employing trained and experienced managers. While it is possible to succeed by this method, hired brains rarely take the place of knowledge on the part of the business owner. This is a good point to keep in mind.

Any man who is starting a business should realize the great importance of a good name. He must decide how his business can best be sold to the public. If the enterprise has to do with the manufacture of a product, a reputation can be established through reliability of the product. The reputation of a business that has only a service to market, however, may depend solely upon the quality of the work performed by its employees for customers. Some of America's great businesses were founded by men who had little business knowledge to begin with, but not one such house was built on a doubtful reputation.

It is obvious that today the success of a new business depends on three essentials: A knowledge of business principles, an understanding of the field in which the enterprise is started, and a reputation for honest dealing.

The Courier brings you local news.

Soil Improvement Aids Corn King

LAFAYETTE, IND.—Producing 151 bushels of corn per acre and winning the title of Five-Acre Corn King for the third time in the past 25 years was simply a matter of sound farm management plus soil improvement, according to A. C. Brown, of Ripley County, Ind., who accomplished this amazing feat.

The eight-acre field on which Mr. Brown's championship yield was produced was originally "slash land" and is now classified as Clermont silt loam, which is not considered productive corn land because of poor drainage, high acidity and low fertility.

Mr. Brown overcame these handicaps by careful surface drainage, laying out the fields in eight row lands with a drainage furrow on either side. He applied seven tons of limestone per acre to the field in the past 15 years and as a result obtained some excellent stands of red clover.

For the past four years he used a light application of manure on the corn land each year. The championship field was in clover pasture in 1937. Last spring Mr. Brown applied 325 pounds of fertilizer per acre to the plot. The fertilizer, he told agronomists of Purdue University, not only greatly increased his yield, but advanced the maturity as well as improved the quality of the grain. This was important, for his corn—a hybrid top cross J. C. N. No

A. C. BROWN

—was planted two weeks later than normal because of wet weather.

Mr. Brown won the state corn yield championship in 1933 and 1935. The runner-up in the five-acre contest was Ralph Heileman of Bartholomew county, Indiana, champion in 1937, who placed second with a yield of 147.3 bushels per acre.

AMERICAN BOY MAGAZINE COMPANION TO THOUSANDS

Hundreds of thousands of boys and young men read THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine every month and consider it more as a living companion than as a magazine.

"It's as much a buddy to me as my neighborhood chum," writes one high school senior. "THE AMERICAN BOY seems to understand a boys problems and considers them in such a sympathetic and helpful way. It gives advice and entertaining reading on every subject in which a young fellow is interested. It is particularly helpful in sports. I made our school basketball team because of playing tips I read in THE AMERICAN BOY."

Many famous athletes in all sports credit much of their success to helpful suggestions received from sports articles carried in THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine. Virtually every issue offers advice from a famous coach or player. Football, basketball, track, tennis, in fact every major sport is covered in fiction and fact articles.

Teachers, librarians, parents and leaders of boys' clubs also recommend THE AMERICAN BOY enthusiastically. They have found that as a general rule regular readers of THE AMERICAN BOY advance more rapidly and develop more worthwhile characteristics than do boys who do not read it.

Trained writers and artists, famous coaches and athletes, explorers, scientists and men successful in business and industry join with an experienced staff to produce in THE AMERICAN BOY, the sort of reading matter boys like best.

THE AMERICAN BOY sells on most newsstands at 15c a copy. Subscription prices are $1.50 for one year or $3.00 for three years. Foreign rates 50c a year extra. To subscribe simply send your name, address and remittance direct to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.
